

To: The Universe

From: Cat Williford, a very tired COOC

Dear Madam:

I have served diligently, seriously, and constantly. I have often sacrificed my own happiness, calm and inner peace to the cause of Control. I have found that Control offers no reward.

Effectively immediately, I officially resign my post as Chief Operating Officer of Control (COOC) for my life and those around me. After 35+ years of service, I've collected enough pushback, disappointment, and feeling misunderstood. I now know there are no real upsides to my self-imposed COOC role.

I am sure I will forget that I resigned and attempt to take on my old role as COOC. I will attempt to re-resign as soon as I realize my mistake.

I'm not quitting altogether and ask for a transfer, please. I believe I'm an excellent candidate for the Intern of Acceptance (IOA) position. I will explore the words "intern" and "acceptance" and all their conjugations. I will rediscover my humor which control tends to squish. (Humorlessness is one way I will know I've "slipped" into my old department's job).

I will practice Acceptance by counting to ten before telling someone how I would do some thing, from driving a car to project planning. I will actively practice Acceptance by allowing others to handle situations in their own responsible way. I will know Acceptance by my feelings of lightness, calm and inner peace. I suspect my clinched gut will relax.

I will have more time as the IOA than when I was the COCC! I will gain mental and emotional clarity, and have the energy to handle what is legitimately mine to handle. I will remember I can ask for help as the IOA. (I can ask for help, I can ask for help, I can ask for help! Wheeeeeeee!)

I already know that Acceptance is not resignation, white flag surrender or a walk down the victim path. Acceptance is a key to my freedom. When I accept reality, I can accept leadership responsibly. When I accept reality, I choose wisely, speak with grace and act with clear intention.

Most importantly, as the IOA I can see I will feel more inspired, successful and irresistible!

Your Loving and Loyal Student,

Print this page and customize it with your own descriptions, adjectives, adverbs, feelings, etc. Really let loose and have fun with this. Don't worry about getting it "right" or perfect, just get it out! I'm a fan of burning letters and lists like these. I enjoy watching the smoke tendrils dissipate and imagine the dissipation within me at the same time. Burn it, shred it, keep it ... no matter, just write it!

To: The Universe

From: _____

Dear Madam:

I have served _____ . I have often sacrificed my own _____ , _____ to the cause of Control. I have found that Control offers no reward.

Effectively immediately, I officially resign my post as Chief Operating Officer of Control (COOC) for my life and those around me. After _____ years of service, I've collected enough _____ . I now know there are no real upsides to my self-imposed COOC role.

I am sure I will forget that I resigned and attempt to take on my old role as COOC. I will attempt to re-resign as soon as I realize my mistake.

I'm not quitting altogether and ask for a transfer, please. I believe I'm an excellent candidate for the Intern of Acceptance (IOA) position. I will explore the words "intern" and "acceptance" and all their conjugations. I will rediscover my humor which control tends to squish. (Humorlessness is one way I will know I've "slipped" into my old department's job).

I will practice Acceptance by _____ , _____ . I will actively practice Acceptance by allowing _____ . I will know Acceptance by my feelings of _____ . I suspect my _____ will relax.

I will have more time as the IOA than when I was the COCC! I will gain _____ , and have the energy to _____ . I will remember I can ask for help as the IOA. (I can ask for help, I can ask for help, I can ask for help! Wheeeeeeee!)

I already know that Acceptance is not resignation, white flag surrender or a walk down the victim path. Acceptance is a key to my freedom. When I accept reality, _____ . When I accept reality, _____ .

Most importantly, as the IOA I can see I will feel more inspired, successful and irresistible!

Your Loving and Loyal Student,